Specification

4. The amendment filed Nov. 21, 2001 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132 because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132 states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: The term "leather" added in the paragraph beginning at page 3, line 2 is new matter. The term "hook" that replaced "loop" and the term "loop" that replaced "hook" are new matter.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3728

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-5,15/1,16,21-25,35,36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US 4716664 (Taylor).

Taylor teaches a bowling shoe with a heel (20) substantially as claim including the lower surface having a horseshoe shape surface (24,26) and a central region (22) being defined by said horseshoe shape surface (24,26) and spaced from this surface.

Regarding claims 2 and 22, the front edge of the heel tapers as shown in figure 5 and therefore tapers as claimed.

Regarding claims 3 and 23, the heel is substantially rectangular shaped except for a forward missing notch and therefore defines a notch as claimed.

Regarding claims 4,5,15,16,24,25,35 and 36 and the like claims, the central region is u-shaped and therefore narrows inwardly and is curved.

7. Claims 1-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US 5901467 (Peterson et al).

Peterson teaches a shoe with a heel (20,21) substantially as claim including the lower surface having a horseshoe shape surface (24,26) and a central region (22) being defined by said horseshoe shape surface (24,26) and spaced from this surface. See the attached marked-up figures 2,4 and 5 for details. The thickness tapers as shown in figure 4. The leading edges are rounded as claimed, see figure 4. The shoe can inherently be used as a bowling shoe.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 42 and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Taylor '664 in view of US 5542198 (Famolare).

Taylor teaches a bowling shoe substantially as claimed (see the rejection above for details) except for the heel surface element being removably mounted. Famolare teaches a bowling shoe wherein the heel surface element (46) is removably mounted by hook-and-loop type fastener system (58,60). It would have been obvious to provide the bowling shoe of Taylor with the heel surface element being removably mounted by hook-and-loop type fastener system, as taught by Famolare, so the wearer can select slide materials having desired frictional characteristics to improve sliding on varying bowling lane surface conditions.

Conclusion

Applicant is duly reminded that a complete response must satisfy the requirements of 37 C.F. R. 1.111. Moreover, "The prompt development of a clear issue requires that the replies of the applicant meet the objections to and rejections of the claims. Applicant should also specifically point out the support for any amendments made to the disclosure. See MPEP 2163.06" MPEP 714.02. The "disclosure" includes the claims, the specification and the drawings.
